

Congress Passes “CRomnibus,” But Not on Party Lines

Votes for “CRomnibus” in 113th House and Senate

Senate

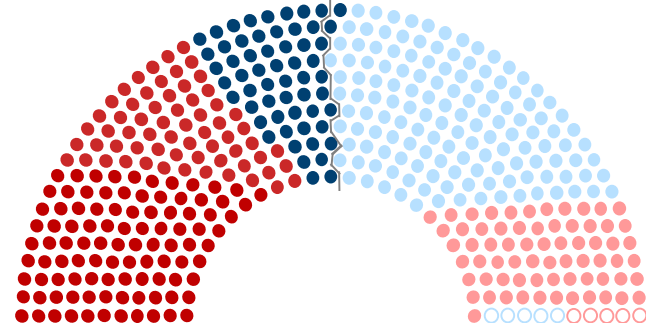

51 Votes Needed to Pass

Votes by Party	Yea	Nay	Not Voting
Republicans	● 24	● 18	○ 3
Democrats	● 31	● 21	○ 1
Independents	● 1	● 1	○ 0
Total	56	40	4

House

218 Votes Needed to Pass

Votes by Party	Yea	Nay	Not Voting
Republicans	● 162	● 67	○ 5
Democrats	● 57	● 139	○ 5
Total	219	206	10

Analysis

- The “CRomnibus” is a measure designed to fund most of the government through FY2015, with Homeland Security only funded through February 2015 to allow for the new Congress to respond to President Obama’s immigration action; the bill also includes specific riders changing campaign finance rules, financial regulations, and ACA rules, among other provisions
- The CRomnibus passed with narrow bipartisan support in both chambers, with votes not easily separable on party, or even ideological, lines: in the House, for instance, Tea Party congressman Ted Yoho (R-FL) and DNC chair Debbie Wasserman Schultz (D-FL) voted for the bill, and Minority leader Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) and Tea Party Caucus founder Michelle Bachmann (R-MN) voted against it