

History May Hold Solution for the Next Greatest Generation

American Generations

Analysis

- Millennials are defined as those born after 1980; in 2014, anyone age 35 or younger can be considered a millennial
- The 9/11 attacks and, later, the recession have had a profound affect on millennials' attitude towards service and politics, making them service-minded but distrustful of governmental institutions