Timeline of key recent federal actions on education

Dec. 2015

○

Every Student Succeeds Act of 2015 (ESSA): President Obama signed the Every Student Succeeds Act into law, a replacement for No Child Left Behind Act. The law limits the federal government’s role in education policy but keeps annual testing requirements. Examples of how the law expands state control include: allowing states to determine their own accountability goals to measure student performance and letting states determine how to intervene in failing and underperforming schools.

○

Gov. Cuomo announces plan for free public higher education in New York: The Democratic governor of New York, Andrew Cuomo, proposed a three-year plan to eliminate tuition costs for public college education for families making less than $125,00 a year by 2019.

Jan. 2017

○

House GOP introduces the Choices in Education Act of 2017: Rep. Steve King (R-IA) introduced a bill to repeal ESSA, distribute federal funds for education in the form of vouchers, limit the authority of the Department of Education and repeal school cafeteria nutritional standards.

Feb 2017

○

Betsy DeVos confirmed as education secretary: In a historically close 51-50 vote, with Vice President Mike Pence casting the tie-breaking vote, DeVos was confirmed as head of the Department of Education, inciting protests. It remains to be seen whether she will push a ‘free market’ education agenda or allow states to make their own education policy decisions.

May 2017

○

Trump administration announces proposal for huge budget cuts to education: The White House requested a funding cut of over $9 billion from the Department of Education for fiscal year 2018.

Potential actions in 115th Congress

- Education Secretary Betsy DeVos is a strong supporter of charter schools and school choice, so it is likely that the administration will advocate free-market education policies
- While former Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton proposed plans for free community college and debt-free public higher education during the campaign, Trump has not signaled an openness to increased spending to alleviate student debt
